"Clear the Track."

This is the very energetic heading that is used by the Lexington (Ky.) Transcript of the 27th as appropriate to the announcement that the preliminaries to the beginning of the work of completing the Lexington It is the thost embarrassing one that has and Big-Sandy railroad bave been accomplished. The Lexington Press of the 28th has the following notice of the finality of the proceeding:

THE BIG-SANDY RAILBOAD .- General Echols and Colonel Breckturidge returned to the city last night on a special train from Mount Sterling. They did a good day's work that we can finally triumph in perfecting on yesterday. The suits against the Eliza- that solution which we have thus far conbethtown, Lexington and Big-Sandy Railroad Company, in Fayette, Clark, and Montgomery, were all dismissed, a judgment to that effect being entered in each displays in the noble calling of agriculture, county. In this connection we think it due to General Echols to express our conviction those in Kentucky-are largely indebted to

He has been the long and devoted friend of the Chesapeake and Ohio line, and no one is more rejoiced than he by this removal of the last obstacle in the way of the through connection by that important railway between the Virginia tide and and the railway system of the West and Northwest. And now the time is come for Richmond merchants to enter the arena. That the connection by Big Sandy with the Kentucky capital cannot be long off, we are satisfied. We of Richmond have long hoped for that intercourse, social and commercial, with our Kentucky brethren which the railway will soon give us. It would be a serious reproach to us for lack of enterprise and energy should we be at all dilatory and slow in preparing for this important event.

We have been smartly disconcerted by the rapid changes in the prospects of another great enterprise which we have taken deeply at heart. This proceeding in Kentucky should now stimulate our spirit and resolution. The assurance of the early consummation of at least one of our western connections gives promise that is vastly encouraging to the prosecution of this "great enterprise." Therefore we may infer that that enterprise is strengthened in its chances; for this connection immensely increases the promises of activity and success for that work when it shall be built. The Doctor is remarking upon the indications in various quarters of a disposition to seek relief from embarrassment by retiring to the country. He says: Many have learned by bitter-experience that the kind of property and the employment which afford to frugal industry at all times a home, with all the necessaries and many of the luxuries of life, is the best. Happy is that State where abundant and cheap lands and a genial climate afford to these weary wanderers from post to pillar a safe retreat and happier and purer homes than they have ever known before. Abundant and cheap land is the safety-valve of society, but woe to the State whose cities are full to overflowing and whose lands are overcrowded with population, or lie waste in the hands of a titled aristocracy when the evil day of depression and stagnation of business comes. This withdrawal of intelligent business-men with small capitals from a stagnant commerce and the bizarre and brazen vulgarity of modern past life in town, and their retiracy to the pure and peaceful homes of country life with their families, is a joyful omen for America. True, the devilish element of the commune will remain in the cities, but the gradual competition of town-life will open the way and eight to colored couples. > The following is Mr. Hayes's veto message upon the marshals' bill sent to the House of Representatives yesterday:

To the House of Representatives: I return to the House of Representatives in which it originated, the bill entitled " An act making appropriations to pay fees of United States marshals and their general deputies," with the following objections to its becoming a law:

The bill appropriates the sum of six hundred thousand dollars for the payment, duing the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880, of Inited States marshals and their general deputies. The officers thus provided for are essential to the faithful execution of the laws. They were created and their powers and duties defined by Congress at its first session after the adoption of the Constitution in the judiciary act which was apduties, as defined in the act which originally established them, were substantially the same as those prescribed in the statutes now

The principal provision on the subject in the Revised Statutes is as follows: Section 787. It shall be the duty of the marshal of each district to attend the district and circuit courts, when sitting therein, and to execute throughout the district all lawful precepts directed to him, and issued under the authority of the United States; and he shall have power to command all necessary assistance in the execution of his duty.' The original act was amended February in the Revised Statutes in the following-

"Section 788. The marshals and their deputies shall have in each State the same powers in executing the laws of the United States as the sheriffs and their deputies in such State may have by law in executing the laws thereof." By subsequent statutes additional duties have been from time to time imposed upon the marshals and their deputies, the due and regular performance of which are required for the efficiency of almost every branch of the public service. Without these officers there would be no means of executing the warrants, decrees, or other process of the courts, and the judicial system of the country would be fatally defeccourts of the United States is very extensive. The crimes committed within the maritime jurisdiction of the United States are all cognizable only in the courts of the United States. Crimes against public justice; crimes against the operations of the Government, such as forging or counterfeiting the money or securities of the United States; crimes against the postal laws; offences again-t the elective franchise, against the civil rights of citi zens, against the existence of the Governcrimes against laws for the protection of Indians, and of the public lands-all of these crimes, and many others, can be punished only under United States vital to the welfare of the whole country, and which can be enforced only by mean of the marshals and deputy marshals of the United States. In the District of Columbia all of the process of the courts is executed "Fair Play" assumes that the negroes by the officers in question. In short, the

> and the execution of the revenue laws, the neutrality laws, and many other laws of large importance, depend on the maintenance of the marshals and their deputies. They are in effect the only police of the United States Government. Officers with corresponding powers and duties are found in every State in the Union, and in every country which has a jurisprudence which is worthy of the name. To deprive the National Government of these officers would be as disastrous to society as to abolish

A book most carefully and elegantly the sheriffs, constables, and police ofright to execute its laws-a demal of all authority which requires the use of civil force. The law entitles these officers to be For sale by J. W. RANDOLPH & ENGLISH. paid. The funds needed for the purpose have been collected from the people, and are now in the Treasury. No objection is therefore made to that part of the bill before me which appropriates money for the support of the marshals and deputy marshals of the United States. The bill contains, however, other provisions which are identical in tenor and effect with the second section of the bill entitled Grace church yesterday morning, and of Representatives with my objections to propriations for the support of marshals and their deputies during the next fiscal year. The object manifestly is to place before the Executive this alternative: Either to allow necessary functions of the public service to be crippled or suspended for want of the appropriations required to keep them in operation, or to approve legislation DRY CATAWBA-From $1.25 to $1.50 per galwhich in official communications to Congress he has declared would be a violation of his constitutional duty. Thus in this bill the principle is clearly embodied that, by virtue of the provision of the Constitution which requires that "all bills for raising revenue shall originate in the Hou e of Representatives," a bare majority of the House of Representatives has the right to withhold appropriations for the support of the Government unless the Executive consents to approve any legislation which may be attached to appropriation bills. I respectfully refer to the direct from Messrs. HENNESSY & Co., Cognac communications on this subject which I have sent to Congress during its present session for a statement of the grounds of my conclusions, and I desire here merely to epeat that, in my judgment, to establish the principle of this bill is to make a radical, dangerous, and unconstitutional change in the character of our institutions. RUTHERFORD B. HAYES. Executive Mansion, June 30, 1879.
